LYNCH LAW AND ITS CURE.

The recent lynchings at Richlands again call attention to a fault in the operation of the laws and a place where the remedy should be applied. There are more lynchings in the South than in the North because the particular crimes for which lynch law is applied occur more frequently in the South than elsewhere. We refer to violence against women.

The crime for which four men were lynched at Richlands was the unprovoked and murderous assault against two men for the purpose of robbery. It is useless to hold up the hands in horror at lynching. Under certain circumstances the sentiment of a large majority of the community upholds it, and a majority of the people can neither be Budicted nor punished for their opin-

Lynching springs from a desire to measure out severe and speedy punish ment, and a belief that a greater injustice and danger menace the community in the law's delay than in the lynching itself. What, then, is the remedy? Make the law flexible enough to act speedily in case of necessity. Let the next legislature pass an act whereby, in case of the commission of a heinous crime and the apprehension of the suspected criminal, the judge of the court te criminal jurisdiction may immediately summon a grand jury from an adjoining county, and, in case an indictment is found, proceed at once, before a jury similarly drawn from an adjoining county, to try the indicted party. In case of conviction the law should provide for immediate punish

My drawing the juries from an adjoining county the danger of prejudiced trials will be avoided, and with careful judicial procedure not one-tenth as many innocent men would be punished as under the lynch law, which gets the wrong man about once in a hundred making rapid progress toward the day of publication. It will be a splendid exposition of the still more splendid growth of Roanoke in 1892. We believe that it will forecast a strong revival of business in all branches early this season. There are plenty of signs to justify the prediction.

But this is the only way lynch law can be abrogated.

OUR BUILDING EDITION.

THE TIMES BUILDING EDITION IS

No city of any considerable spirit reenained in a condition of depression turce full years. Roanoke's stagnation time been confined to speculative real estate operations, and the monetary stringency due to the necessarily enormous use of money to pay real estate mostes, which would have otherwise remained in the regular channels of trade. Still it will be found that the real estate transfers of 1892 have been largely in excess of the demands for building lots for that year, showing that the demands t .. future have been anticipated to a

Serve extent. The plans for operations for 1893 are still largely formative. So much de pends upon the developments connected with the Norfolk and Western railroad that it is too early to come down to details as to the particular effect upon the growth of Rosnoke. In a general way it is safe to say that the growth of Roanoke in 1893 will not be less than in 1892 and probably considerably in excess. As to the increase of the Roanoke Machine Works forceast in THE TIMES recently, we would ask the doubters the following question: If the shops were none too large to furnish equipment when the road extended only from Norfolk to Bristol, with the Pocahontas branch as its only considerable offshoot, with less than 600 miles of main track, how much larger should they be to supply additional equipment for the Shenandoah Valley division, 239 miles; the Lynchburg ond Durham division, 113 miles; the Winston-Salem, 121 miles; the North Carolina division, 45 miles; the Clinch Valley division, 103 miles; the Ohio Extension and Scioto Valley division, 344 miles, a total increase in mileage of over 800 miles, and with a coal tonage which has doubled in five years?

Secondly, which is better, to buy cars from Pullman on twenty years time at per cent. or to sell 100 year bonds bearing 5 per cent. and build equipment at Roanoke. There are some things which do not need a fish-plate certificate fastened with a railroad tie, and sealed with a car-coupler to be evident.

GO TO HALIFAX

Written for THE TIMES by J. W. Plaine.

Don't go in mid-winter unless you are inclined to revel in all sorts of disagreeables. I made that mistake once. I shall never voluntarily repeat it. Slush, sleet, snow, pierceing winds, rain, fog and all the evils attending personal discomfort wait upon you. There is a surfeit of mean weather in our own winter. Boston, during the same period, is in reality the more disagreeable place. Because Nova Scotia gets some benefit of the gulf stream. Boston none. Go to Halifax! is heard daily far and wide as a mild sort of invective, and after having gone, in fine weather, the invective will have lost its potency. It is a city of good hotels and excellent cooks, clean well-paved streets and one of the best lighted towns on the continent.

It contains a public garden that is well kept and as much appreciated as any one of the dozens of famous gardens and parks in our own cities.

The situation of Halifax is such that perfect drainage can be had and there are no better systems of water supply. You will see as much of "Merry Eng-land" as you would get by doing land" as you would get by doing Southampton or Sheerness. No three of our seaport cities can boast equal protection from the invasion that might be attempted by sea. It is the only place on the American continent where British troops are constantly maintained in numerical force. It is practically as safe as Gibraltar. Its armament includes about a dozen forts besides the citadel of the town. Being both a garrison town and naval station there is excellent society to be found among the officers and their families, apart from the very nice people one meets among the citizens, with any sort of a pull at headquarters, with friends in the city, with letters of introduction, Halifax is delightful.

There are many Southerness and officers are many Southerness and officers.

There are many Southerners and officers of the Conderade army who left the States at the close of the war, having found Halifax so satisfactory they remain to this day. The roadways are excellent for coaching, hunting is good, and riding to hounds is indulged in. There are many excursions by water that are full of interest, which can be made at a triffing cost. Then these may be multiplied ad infinitum by the rail and coach journeys.

be multiplied ad infinitum by the rail and coach journeys.

There are two excellent clubs—the "Halifax" and the "City"—well housed and splendidly appointed. Should good fortune find you one day in summer with the requisite number of shillings and an inclination to spend a few weeks of your holiday in travel by all means go to Halifax.

Skeletons of Union Soldiers Uncarthed.
FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Feb. 3.—The skeletons of six Union soldiers were uncarthed to-day in the yard of Jacob Grundler, near Marye's Heights, where an excavation was being made. It is probable that they fell during the battle here in May, 1863. Union but tons were found with the remains. Major Thomas D. McAlpin, superintendent of the National Cemetery, upon being notified, took the remains in charge and will have them reinterred in the National Cemetery. It is for this reason that Dr. Greene's Nervara blood and nerve remedy is now used so exten sively in hospitals and so widely recommended by physicians for the cure of disease.

But do not wait until you are actually paralyzed before using this great remedy. Paralysis is always the result of neglecting the first symptoms. The property of the first symptoms appear, and you can always ward off paralysis, nervous debility and nervous and physical prostation.

Democratic Senators Think Cleveland Should Name Lamar's Successor.

fill life places of such importance.

There is no question that Senators on both sides of the chamber are deeply concerned by the probability of the nomination of a Republican circuit judge to succeed Judge Jackson, the Democrats being determined in advance to resist the installation of a Republican on the Southern circuit, and the Republicans fearing that they will have a hard struggle to confirm such a nomination at this late stage in the session.
